No. 15 MOKENA 6-JMokena Faces
Growth With
New Annexation

The matter of annexation of the McIntosh subdivision into the corporate limits of the village of Mokena was again up for consideration at the council meeting Wednesday night. Mr. Berg, who owns 11 lots in the subdivision represented the other property owners in the subdivision named. A month ago Mr. Berg had presented a petition to the board asking that the territory in question be annexed and the water, lights and sidewalk facilities be extended, but at that time Mayor George J. Hacker had asked that Arthur McIntosh of the McIntosh Realty Co., sign the petition also.

Mr. Berg said he had secured Mr. McIntosh's signature to the petition and had returned same to Mr. Hacker. At the meeting Wednesday night Mayor Hacker was absent due to illness and the other board members did not know anything about the petition being returned. Mr. Berg was given the assurance however, that the petition will be turned over to H. Rehn, village attorney for examination and upon his approval of same, a special election will be held and the matter of annexation put up to the approval of the voters.

Mr. Berg showed where other towns have made great progress within the past five and ten years and property values have showed a rapid increase in value.

Alderman Ona E. McGovney, who served as mayor pro tem said it was his candid opinion that the future development of Mokena all depends on what improvements are made. If the McIntosh subdivision is annexed it will mean the extension of the city water, gas, lights etc., and help greatly in developing the town. Many new homes will be built, property values will increase and Mokena will be on the upward trend.

Mr. Berg pointed out the important location of Mokena between two big cities, Chicago on the east and Joliet on the west.

Nearly all the lot owners in the subdivision referred to are to build, but are waiting to have their property annexed into the corporate limits of the village before they will start building operations.

If the voters put over annexation question favorably then the matter of extending local improvements will be the next move. All this work will be done by special assessments.

A local board of improvements already exists and the matter of going ahead with local improvements would be taken up at once.

Soon as the village attorney approves the annexation petition, a special meeting of the council will be called and a date set for a special annexation election.

The News-Bulletin has always advocated that Mokena will develop as soon as new home builders and owners can be induced to locate here and build up the community. It is only a matter of time before the Rock Island will adopt electrification plans similar to the Illinois Central and then there is bound to be a rapid development of all the territory between Chicago and Joliet. Five or ten years hence will see a big change in this section.

Gas Thieves Busy

Gasoline thieves are busy. The past week a number of reports have come in where gasoline has been stolen from outside tanks. Edward Marti, Mokena alderman, had 25 gallons stolen from his place.

Karl E. Krapp, village clerk, reports that someone visited his place Saturday night and tipped over an outside tank, but failed to get any gas as the tank was an empty one. Sometime ago however, gas thieves stole about 90 gallons of gas from him and Harry Kohlhausen.

Mokena May Adopt Zoning Ordinance

With new improvements and new building activities, the Mokena village council is seriously thinking of passing a zoning ordinance restricting the erecting of certain type and cost of buildings. The aim is to prevent the erection of a lot of tar paper shacks which are a detriment instead of a boost to a community. It is proposed to restrict the cost of dwellings from $4,000 as a minimum to an unlimited amount above that figure. Separation of the business from the residential section would also be in order so that a quiet and pretty residential section would not be marred with smoky and noisy industrial plants.

To Clean Up
City of the Dead

August Hentsch was instructed by the Mokena council to clean up the old cemetery south of the village. This burial spot while not in use, marks the final resting place of the pioneers who first started Mokena, and should be kept free from weeds and brush. This makes the second time this year that the cemetery has been cleaned by the village board.

Route 51 May Bring Motor Cop

The county board right of way committee has secured the right of way south of Frankfort up to the village for Route 51 and it is understood that some of the right of way which has been held up in Cook County has also been secured. No right of way has been secured thru the village itself, but a committee has been appointed to confer with local property owners to sell their property for the needed right of way. The state highway department proposes to build a 700 foot curve thru the village which will take the greater portion of the Eichmeier property and practically all of the Kohlhausen and Bauman properties. The Michigan Central depot will also have to be moved.

When Route 51 is completed thru Frankfort it is probable that a motorcycle cop will have to be maintained either by the village of Frankfort or the state as the new route especially thru Frankfort is likely to be made a speedway by the motorists. It is understood that a stop and go light system will be installed at the four corners north of Frankfort where Route 51 crosses the Lincoln highway. This will be a necessity as there will be a very heavy traffic at this point.

Council Passes Appropriation Bill

The Mokena council passed its annual appropriation bill Wednesday night, appropriating $4,600 for the ensuing year.

At the same meeting over $1,400 in claims were allowed, the largest items being for $657.00 for 8,225 gallons of road oil bought from the Mokena Oil Co.

Oldest and Youngest Institute Members
At New Lenox

Mrs. U. J. Albertson, widow of the late Senator Albertson from Pekin, and mother of Mrs. Henry E. Rompel, of Morris, formerly of Joliet, at the age of 83 years, holds the distinction of being the oldest student, in years, enrolled for the sessions and class work of the even annual Epworth league institute, convening on the Centenary camp grounds, New Lenox.

Youngest is Age 3.

Ruth Mohns, 3-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Mohns, the former pastor of the Trinity M. E. church, is the youngest student enrolled in class work.

Hundreds at New Lenox

Six hundred and fifty persons registered for the opening day's services Sunday, and nightly several hundred young people and adults gathered for the devotional period, which is followed by a social hour. Fifty full time students have enrolled for the daily class work which is supervised by a faculty of trained instructors. Approximately 50 more students have enrolled for part time class sessions.

Raise Funds For New Tabernacle
At New Lenox

A movement has been started to raise thru personal solicitation, and voluntary gifts, a fund of $6,000 to be used in the rehabilitation of the camp grounds, and the erection of a general assembly hall, the Rev. Mr. Godden, dean of the institute stated. Two thousand dollars has already been given for that purpose, and it is expected that the full amount will be raised by fall, after which plans for the building will be made and improvements started in early spring.

The old tabernacle where the evening meetings are held, and class work conducted, will be torn down, as it is in need of considerable repairing at present and is not adequate to the needs of the institute.

In its place will be erected a central hall, with class rooms built around it, opening into it.

Re-Appoint Village Treasurer

John Liess who has served as treasurer of the village of Mokena for the past fifteen years, was re-appointed treasurer by the Mokena board Wednesday night. Mr. Liess has given very efficient service and is very accurate in all his work.

Shooting Club
Taboo at Mokena

The Mokena board of trustees has refused to grant permission for the operation of a shooting club on the Peter Michelsen place south of town as the operation of such a club is in conflict with the village ordinance prohibiting the discharge of fire arms in the village limits. A club from Chicago has been seeking to rent Mr. Michelsen's place for a shooting club.

He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet. He is in a very serious condition.

A Minature Storm

Shortly after noon Thursday a sudden sharp thunderstorm swept the vicinity of Mokena. A high wind accompanied the storm and a number of trees were blown down. A very heavy rain accompanied the storm. The rain was very much needed and came in time to do much good for the corn crop. The storm attained cyclonic proportions near Homewood where trees were uprooted, telephone poles were blown down and a number of hay stacks torn to pieces and scattered over the countryside.

State Engineer
Makes No Decision
On County Roads

The following sub-joined letters are self explanatory.

July 19, 1927.

Mr. G. N. Lamb,
State District Engineer,
Elgin, Illinois.

My dear Sir:-
I am enclosing you herewith clipping from the Joliet Evening Herald-News of Monday evening July 18, 1927, which covers your inspection of certain roads to be placed on the bond issue for hard roads. I want to refer you to the paragraph with the heading "Inspect Mokena Roads", especially to the paragraph in which reference is made to Wolf Road which reads as follows:

Objection to this road was raised by Mr. Lamb because of the dangerous Rock Island crossing thru the village of Mokena. May I ask how you figure this crossing any more dangerous than the crossing where the hard roads cross the Rock Island at Oak Forest and Midlothian.

The Rock Island Railroad employs a watchman at the crossing at Wolf Road at Mokena.

This Association would like to have an explanation from you why you consider this crossing so dangerous and we ask that you be kind enough to favor us with a prompt reply.

Yours truly,

MOKENA DEVELOPMENT AND
HARD ROADS IMPROVEMENT
ASSOCIATION.

L. G. Bruder, Chairman.

Orland Repeals Cemetery ordinance

The ordinance which the village board of Orland Park recently passed giving M. D. Bryce of Chicago permission to establish a cemetery on the old Murray farm in the village limits with the stipulation that the village was to receive $500 per year for the permit so long as the land was used for cemetery purposes, raised a terrific spirit of opposition on the part of a large number of citizens who got up a petition of protest signed by 140 citizens. The ordinance granting the cemetery permit was to have gone into effect July 29th. A special meeting was called Wednesday night. Mr. Bryce was not present but he was represented by Judge Reigh of Chicago.

Attorney Albert H. Krusemark representing the village of Orland Park after examining the cemetery ordinance which Bryce had drawn up and which the board passed, declared it was full of flaws and in his opinion the board could not legally collect the $500 promised a year and that the cemetery might even be used for a negro burial plot. He advocated that the board repeal the ordinance which they did.

Another ordinance was then submitted which would prohibit the opening of a cemetery within a mile of the corporate limits of the village, but the board took no action on it.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson,
Illinois Press Association.

The venerable dean of Illinois editors, Hon. Henry Wilson Clendenin, editor and copublisher of the Illinois State Register, is dead. He would have been ninety years old August 1, and yet he went to the office daily until about a week before his death. A year ago he completed a 400-page autobiography which tells in detail the interesting story of an eventful career. He had been in the newspaper business for 75 years, starting in 1852 as a printer's "devil" on the Burlington (Iowa) Hawkeye. In 1856 he became newsroom foreman and telegraph editor of the Peoria Transcript. Then there was an interval for the Civil war and he enlisted in the Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry. After his term of enlistment expired he came west again to be telegraph editor on the Burlington Gazette-Argus. Before he became editor of the Illinois State Register he served on the Peoria Transcript, the Keokuk Constitution, the Metamora (Ill.) Sentinel and the Keokuk Gate City.

Space for farm machinery is being rapidly reserved in Machinery hall, at the fairgrounds. The hall was formerly used for automobile displays, but the new grandstand provides room, underneath its seating area, for the state fair auto show. The lighter forms of equipment will be shown there instead of the heavy machinery on display at Machinery field. In the building there are only a few locations left, although the exhibition area is 50,000 square feet.

Officials responsible for the care of Lincoln's tomb say that there is no need for volunteer repair work in connection with the tomb, since the state has appropriated funds for that purpose and plans are under way for doing what is necessary. Removal of weather marks and pointing up the masonry is all that is believed to be needed to put the monument in first-class condition. Architects state that there are no fundamental defects in the structure.

Promoters of a safety flue device supposedly being manufactured in Decatur by a company headed by Leo and Oscar Van Hall have been arrested. It is alleged that they induced Mrs. Ellen Knoles, of Petersburg, to sign a contract to buy $2,000 worth of stock. Upon the advice of her banker she waited until investigation could be made and the stock was found to be worthless.

Springfield may have a new labor temple, if plans being made by the Springfield Federation of Labor mature. It is estimated that a ten-story building can be erected at a cost of $450,000. To finance the structure, it was suggested that all members of organized labor be invited to subscribe $100 to the fund, payable in ten monthly payments.

At a conference held in Holland, Michigan, flood control for Illinois was discussed by Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, Gov. Fred W. Green, Michigan, and others. "The time has come when congress must grasp definitely and settle for all time this Middle West flood problem," said Mayor Thompson.

Dr. S. E. Munson, councillor of the Fifth district of the Illinois State Medical society, appointed Dr. H. C. Blankmeyer of Springfield to attend an important meeting of that society in Chicago.

Constables C. K. Thompson, Hartford, and John Kunnernman have been released on bonds of $20,000 each. Four other officers arrested in Madison county by federal prohibition officers are still in custody.

Governor Small is attending a governor's conference at Mackinac island for the purpose of discussing with the governors of several other states such subjects as flood conditions and agricultural legislation.

Confiscated liquor may be sold or given to state institutions under the state dry laws, according to an opinion by Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom. He also stated that distilling apparatus may be destroyed.

Attorney John M. Pfeifer has been appointed master-in-chancery of Sangamon County Circuit court by Circuit Judge Charles G. Briggie.

Attorney General Carlstrom has rendered an opinion which forbids the countersigning of orders by deputy county treasurers.

For several weeks a representative of the United States Department of Commerce, William J. McGauley, has been engaged in making a census of distribution in Springfield to show all products marketed. Similar surveys are being made by the bureau of census in twelve other cities in the United States.

Officers and enlisted men of the Illinois National Guard numbering approximately 230 will enter Camp Grant, Rockford, July 30, for two weeks' encampment.

Repeals provision authorizing county superintendents to withhold school funds until the boards of education or trustees comply with certain requirements. Provides that if the income of the permanent township fund shall be insufficient to meet expenses, the additional amount needed may be taken from other funds subject to distribution. When a balance remains in the township fund after all expenses are paid it shall be distributed among school districts teaching grades from 1 to 8. Changes the amount of money to be set aside for teachers' pensions and for funds to be paid into the state treasury from 2/15 to 1/5 of a mill on each dollar assessed, the provisions relating to the basis for apportionment of school funds, and the form to be used in making application for funds. House Bill 14 (Curran). Provides for the acquisition and establishment by the state of Illinois, through the department of conservation, of a state-wide system of fishing and hunting grounds to be open to the public for fishing, hunting, boating, camping, hiking, motoring, picnicking and other similar park purposes. The state is authorized to contract a debt of $20,000,000 for such purpose and to issue serial bonds in that amount, bearing interest at not to exceed 4 per cent per annum. A tax is levied sufficient to pay the interest and principal, but moneys in the game and fish fund are required first to be used for such payments, and in any year in which sufficient money has been appropriated from the game and fish fund, the direct tax shall be omitted. The act shall not go into effect unless, at the general election in November, 1928, it shall receive a majority of votes cast for members of the general assembly at such election.

Senate Bill 176 (Smith). Amends and repeals certain sections of an act relating to roads and bridges, approved June 27, 1913. Provides for payments for right-of-way in aiding the state in the construction of hard road routes and for elections on such propositions. Highway commissioners are empowered to take land for such purposes by eminent domain, when a price for the land cannot be agreed upon with the owners thereof.

Provides for reimbursement by state to counties contributing funds for blind relief. Provides for relief benefits of $365,000 per year. Reports shall be made to state auditor. Tax of one-fifth of a mill on the dollar on all property of state shall be levied for such purpose.

House Bill 29 (Propper). Authorizes the board of education of every elementary school district teaching grades 1 to 8, inclusive, having a population of more than one thousand five hundred, but not over one hundred thousand, and a school enrollment of more than two hundred fifty, by referendum vote, to levy additional tax of two per centum on the assessed valuation of such district for educational purposes.

Senate Bill 149 (Dunlap). Appropriates $50,000 to the University of Illinois, annually from proceeds of sales of public lands as provided by act of congress, approved July 2, 1862. Whenever any portion of said sum shall be received by the state treasurer from the United States it shall be immediately paid over to the treasury of the university.

Senate Bill 243 (Barr). Amends section 4 and the title of Illinois Industrial University act of 1887. Provides that the president of the university shall hold office at the pleasure of the board of trustees. Title to read, "An act to provide for the organization and maintenance of the University of Illinois."

House Bill 54 (Johnson, E. A. W.). Authorizes the commissioners of Lincoln park, Cook county, to issue bonds not to exceed $6,000,000 for park purposes. No more than $2,000,000 shall, however, be voted on at any election. Provides for payment of such bonds and for referendum thereon.

House Bill 15 (Curran). Appropriates $715,680 for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the office of the attorney general until the expiration of the first fiscal quarter after the adjournment of the next regular session of the general assembly.

House Bill 25 (Mariner). Amends certain sections and the title of act providing for appointment of a board of fire and police commissioners in cities having a population of not less than seven thousand, or more than two hundred thousand, so as to extend provisions of the act to incorporated towns having a like population.

Senate Bill 140 (Barr). An act to prohibit the wrongful interference with telegraph and telephone lines and messages. Provides punishment, fine and imprisonment.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

To him who chooses sacrifice for his fate there often come the best gifts, to see deep into the unsearchable and smilingly to build as though within a pleasure park, upon the boundary of the ideal.

COMMON FOODS

Our common foods are those which are the oftenest served in a haphazard manner, when they should be served with the greatest care, to make them attractive. The real ingenuity of the cook is shown in the manner she serves and the attention she gives to commonplace things.

Flemish Carrots.—Cut the carrots in thin slices, using a vegetable cutter so that they will be uniform. Let them stand in cold water to crisp them if old. For a pint of carrots, melt a tablespoonful of butter, add one-fourth of a cupful of chopped onion and half a teaspoonful of sugar. Cover and let cook very slowly, using care not to scorch them. When the onion is yellow add one cupful of beef broth and simmer until the carrots which have been added are well cooked. Sprinkle with parsley and serve.

Split Pea Soup.—Soak two cupfuls of split peas over night, drain and cover with two quarts of water, cook slowly with one small onion chopped, three stalks of celery, a few sprigs of parsley and a carrot cut fine. Cook two slices of pork in the water for an hour or less before adding the peas. When well cooked, rub through a sieve and bind with two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter. When hot serve at once.

Coconut Bread Pudding.—Soak a pint of bread crumbs in a pint of milk, add three tablespoonfuls of grated coconut and another pint of milk. Add four tablespoonfuls of grated lemon rind and pour into a baking dish. Bake in hot water very slowly.

Chicken Goulash.—This is a good dish to extend a small amount of chicken. Dice two medium-sized potatoes and fry in two tablespoonfuls of olive oil for five minutes. Season with salt and pepper and add a few mushrooms if at hand. Then add one cupful of cooked chicken, one clove of garlic, crushed, a cupful of broth or water; cover and cook until the potatoes are well done.

Tasty Foods.
Here is a salad which will be in season all the year:

Tuna Fish Salad.—Take one cupful of tuna fish, two hard cooked eggs, four sweet pickles, one cupful of celery. Cut the pickles, eggs and celery in small pieces and add to the flaked fish. Add a tablespoonful or less of lemon juice and mix lightly with mayonnaise and salt, with a dash of cayenne. Place on lettuce and serve.

Mexican Ham.—Lay a slice of ham two and one-half inches thick in a casserole after rubbing it well with a teaspoonful of mustard and a tablespoonful of brown sugar. Cover with sliced potatoes two or three inches thick, dot with butter, season with salt and pepper, cover with milk and bake like scalloped potatoes in a slow oven at least two hours.

Date Tapioca.—Stir three tablespoonfuls of tapioca with one-half cupful of sugar into three pints of milk. Cook until the tapioca is clear. Cool and stir into it one cupful of stoned and chopped dates with a teaspoonful of vanilla and lemon and a pinch of salt. Bake in a buttered baking dish and serve with stoned dates and cream.

Eggs a la Caracus.—Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a hot saucepan, add a quarter of a pound of dried beef finely cut and a tablespoonful of grated cheese. Toss until the beef is slightly fried, then add one cupful of stewed tomatoes, four beaten eggs, cayenne and white pepper. Stir and cook until creamy. Serve garnished with parsley.

Strawberry Whip.—Mix one cupful of crushed berries with one-third cupful of powdered sugar or more if needed to sweeten. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff, add one-third of a cupful of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar; beat again. Combine the mixtures and serve in sherbet cups with sponge cake.

Pineapple Lacto.—Dissolve three-fourths of a cupful of sugar in three cupfuls of buttermilk, add three-fourths of a cupful of pineapple and the juice of two lemons. Freeze as usual.

Buttermilk Jelly.—Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in cold water to cover, add the juice of two oranges, the juice of a lemon, three-fourths cupful of sugar and three cupfuls of buttermilk. Let stand to mold. Serve cold.

Tomato Rabbit Sandwich.—Spread whole wheat bread (crusts removed) with butter, mustard, a bit of Worcestershire sauce and a slice of tomato sprinkle with grated cheese and cover with another slice of buttered bread. Fry in a little butter until the bread is well browned on both sides.

Human Speech Calls for Little Energy

Speech requires a small amount of energy, according to telephone engineers, who explain that if a million persons were to talk steadily, and the energy of their voices were to be converted into heat, they would have to talk for an hour and a half to produce sufficient heat to make a cupful of tea. One acoustic expert has divided the English speech into 36 letter sounds, and he found that the vowels carry most of the energy. It is estimated that at the upper and lower limits of hearing it takes a million times as much energy to make sound audible as in the range of 1,000 to 5,000 cycles, where the ear is most sensitive. On the radio the sounds "th," "f," "s" and "v" are the most difficult to hear correctly. This is attributed chiefly to their very weak energy.—Scientific American.

The First Doll's House

What may prove to be the earliest British doll's house has been discovered in an old country house in Chelmsford. It is a two-story house about five feet high, built of solid oak, and contains four large rooms, attics and a balcony on top. The legs on which the house is mounted and the paneling and the mirrors, are, it is said of definite Queen Anne design and workmanship.

Luminous House Numbers

A luminous number which can be seen from a distance at night has been put up on the town hall at Budapest, writes the correspondent of the London Observer, and the authorities are considering the advisability of putting luminous numbers on all houses in the city, and luminous plaques at the street corners on which the street names may be easily read after dark. It is claimed that Budapest is the first city to consider this method of obviating this difficulty.

If you are planning to trade-in your present car for a new car, remember these facts:

- 1 When you trade-in your used car for a new car, you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.
- 2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 3 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 4 The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 5 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 6 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

Why I Want to Go Back to France

(First Prize Essay in the American Legion's France Convention Contest. Written by Robert McKinnis of New Britain, Pa.)

I want to go back to the land of romance once more—to march down the sweltering roads again with the memory of a carefree gang of doughboys tramping along to the songs of "Hinky Dinky, Parley Voo," "Good-bye, Broadway, Hello France," and dear old "Madelon." I want to be part of that dust-covered column once more; to live again the things that made it hell, yet made us love it, too—lines of sweat streaking down dusty faces and necks, dangling hands swelling up to numbness as pack straps tighten across the shoulders, noisy mess wagons with clanking pans rolling along in the rear, a passing outfit of Frogs trudging out of the lines for a rest, ambulances jammed with muddy, bloody, grinning Yanks going back to Blighty—and the distant boom of big guns banging away over the hills in front of us.

I'd like to crawl back into a certain cramped and water-soaked dugout up near Toul, and watch it rain, rain, rain. I want to lie once more in a wheat field below the old chateau in Conde-en-Brie, and watch for Jerry heads popping up and down in the trenches across the Marne. I want to live again the night of July 14, when they poured up through that field to wipe us out, and to see if the same little trench is still there where we found Ed and Charley four days later, leaning over their rifles on top of the parapet just as the Jerries had knocked them off.

I want to live all the nights again; to see the bursting shrapnel and to hear it whistling for its victims; to hear the frantic cries of "gas" repeating down the line; to lie listening to the dismal moan of G. I. cans going over to wake up the boys from Berlin. I want to crouch there in my dugout listening and wondering. Listening to the dull heavy boom of far-away cannon rumbling through the night. Listening to the drip, drip, drip of the everlasting rain out in the darkness. I want to lie there wondering—always wondering—what it's all about.

I want to see French hills, French fields, French sky, French people once again. I want to see the kids—to know that they've learned to smile since the war. I want to go back to France once more—not to seek new joys or thrills, but to revive the dreams of old that are fading with the years.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE A. E. F. is mobilizing again. But it is the second A. E. F. which is planning a trip abroad and this time the slogan is "On to Paris!" Instead of "On to Berlin!" All over the United States, members of the American Legion are making their plans to revisit the land over which they fought ten years ago and to attend the annual Legion convention, which will be held in Paris September 19 to 24.

It's a very different A. E. F. that is going over in this year 1927 from the one that went over in the year 1917. Then its members crossed the Atlantic in crowded troop ships, their sailing clouded with the profoundest of secrecy, every mile of their journey beset by the dangers of the submarine-infested water. For the folks at home there was a long anxious wait and then finally word came back that these boys of theirs had arrived safely "Somewhere in France." This year they'll be going over on palatial steamers like the Leviathan, the Republic and the President Harding, and instead of the folks back home waiting anxiously for word from them, some of these folks will accompany them on this gala trip. For the sweethearts of 1917 are the wives of 1927, and they're

Some Familiar Scenes in France That Await the Second Coming of the A. E. F.

1. CHAMBOURD—Madame Mathilde Coupeu, the Washerwoman of Chamboord. It was Madame Coupeu who paddled out hundreds of shirts and socks and suits of underwear for hundreds of American soldiers who passed through Chamboord on their way to the front. She's standing on a ladder which points to the temporary abode of those hundreds of men.
2. ONLY ON FOOT MAY THEY CROSS—Such is the warning to the approaches of the Arch de Triomphe in Paris. Americans in the French capital for the American Legion convention must heed this warning, too. There are plenty of "pieton" signs which are being erected for their benefit. "A pieton" is a person who does an "aller a pied." In other words, a person of either sex who goes on foot. "Pieton" signs are near the Arch de Triomphe and request the visitor to "Traversez de la Chaussee," or go across on their shoes. "Allons! Pietons! And make it snappy no matter how much your 'old dogs' are fretting."
3. ROMAGNE—Abbe Ernest Decourtier, Cure of the church at Romagne-Sousmont Faucon. The road to the right, following the direction of the arrow on the tree leads to the American military cemetery where rest the bodies of at least 15,000 American war dead. The Cure was ordered shot as a spy, but about an hour before the time set for him to face the firing squad an alibi was given for him by a German priest and he was saved.
4. LE FOUR DE PARIS—Once upon a time LeFour de Paris was quite a village, having a population of 700. Here it is today, nothing except the base of a road marker at the right. A new signboard has been erected, just to the right of where the old one stood. A monument, too, has been erected and may be seen in the picture.
5. ALLIEPOINT—Buy some maps before you start out looking for Alliepoint, is the advice given many members of the Eightieth (Blue Ridge) division, going back to revisit the town which stood along the banks of the Airon river. Alliepoint didn't have a chamber of commerce, but it was a respectable place and was about as much heard of as its neighboring villages of Vepel and Thenorgues. Then it took the role of chief stopper of shells, fired by the Eightieth, and this is what you can see of Alliepoint when you go back today.
6. LAHARAZEE—Until last summer the shaft in the German cemetery in the Argonne forest, near the dugout of the crown prince of Bavaria, was surmounted by a marble eagle. Now the eagle is somewhere in the United States. An ex-American army officer, who fought his way through the Argonne in 1918, carried it off as a souvenir.

going to Paris, too. And some mothers are going. And when they get to Paris how different it will be from 1917 also! Then it was a matter of only a few hours' leave and even those hours were spent under the watchful eyes of the M. P.'s. This year they are going back with the knowledge of seven days of glorious freedom in the French capital, of living at some of the best hotels at moderate prices, American Legion officers in charge of the arrangements for the convention have engaged five classes of hotels, and will give the boys a week in Paris at prices ranging from $10 to $49 for room only, for the seven days.

As for the matter of M. P.'s, there won't be any. No passports will be required for members of the Legion attending the convention, and they will enjoy complete freedom. Identification certificates have been accepted by all European countries, instead of passports, thus avoiding visas or charges of any kind. Since such certificates are heretofore unknown to the Paris police, the boys will have only to flourish them to get past any French authorities. Although the Legion authorities will appoint special units in each group to assist the French police force in handling the crowds, Legion officials are counting upon the fact that at least one-third of the 30,000 delegates who are going will be the wives or other female relatives of the men. They will be the real M. P.'s of this A. E. F. while it is in Paris! For that is the reason that most of them are heeding the slogan "On to Paris." Robert McKinnis, the winner of the prize essay contest, whose reason for going is given above, has expressed it for all of them, when he indicated that they are going back to revisit the scenes of the greatest adventure of their lives. And they're going back, too, to read certain names on the white crosses which stand in long rows at Romagne-sous-Mont-faucon, at St. Mihiel, at the Somme, at Suresnes and at the Marne. For these are the names of their buddies, certain members of the first A. E. F. who went to France to stay!

Minnow Just Had to Do That Little Stunt

Dwight M. Morrow, the New York banker, had been talking to a Washington correspondent about the difficulties of the Mexican situation.

"And when these difficulties seem insurmountable," Mr. Morrow ended, "I think of the minnow story, and then I roll up my sleeves a little higher and pitch in again."

"Uncle Wiggledy, you know, was telling his small nephew a bedtime story about a minnow. This minnow now was enjoying life peacefully when one day a great big trout suddenly dashed at him with open mouth."

"The minnow turned like the wind, swam ashore, landed, and went leaping from rock to rock up the steep bank of the stream."

"But, Uncle Wiggledy," the little boy interrupted, "how could a minnow leap from rock to rock?"

"By George," said Uncle Wiggledy, "he had to!"

A New Way to Make Jellies

Without Staining Fingers—Without Long Hours of Boiling—Without Depending Upon Berries or Fruit Being in Season.

One of the most interesting and yet one of the simplest new products in the food field is called minute jelly. It is pure fruit or berry juice already boiled down and concentrated. To this concentrated juice, fruit pectin in the right amount has been added. The pectin is that part of fruit which makes jelly "jell." It is as pure and wholesome as the fruit juice.

To make the jelly take the little bottle of concentrated juice, pour in a sauce pan, add water and sugar according to directions on the bottle and boil a few minutes. Then pour into jelly glasses and when it has become cold you have the most delicious pure fruit jelly you ever tasted.

A few bottles kept on hand, selected according to your taste for jellies, and you can make up a few glasses just as you want it. One small bottle makes two glasses of jelly. If you wish to try two bottles send us twenty-five cents and we will give you your choice of—grape, mint, pineapple, orange, raspberry, strawberry or blackberry. Or four bottles—all different—for fifty cents. Address Department WU, General Packing Corp., Cranford, New Jersey.—Adv.

Levi Doty Saved Chicago Man From A Watery Grave

The life of Mr. Levi Doty, the grand old man of Frankfort is full of rich experiences and the following incident which occurred at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 was one of real excitement:

On July 21st, 1893 the World's Fair was held in Chicago. At that time Mr. Doty was farming and had some forty acres of tame hay to cut. He had three men, George Letts, Andrew Schroth and Lemuel Churchill helping him. They had all worked so faithfully that the crop was soon harvested and put away in barns and stacks. As they finished, Mr. Doty thanked them very much and to show them that he appreciated it very much he told them to set a day the next week and he would take them to the big World's Fair at Chicago and they would spend the day there and it wouldn't cost them a cent. As it was hard to get a dinner there, Mrs. Doty packed each one of them a basket and they went up early in the morning and had a fine time before the crowd got there.

Mr. Doty and his guests picked out a nice place down by the Boston Leather Company site to eat their dinner. It was only a few rods from the lake. All at once a crowd rushed back from the shore screaming that a man was drowning. Mr. Doty told his men to come on and they rushed down to the shore. The man had fallen in and had risen twice and had gone down for the third time. The people were saying that he wouldn't come up again, although the man had risen twice and had gone down for the third time.

Just then there was a blubber in the water about six feet from the shore. Mr. Doty asked if that was where the man had come up and they said it was. It was just then he discovered him rising very slowly scarcely moving. Mr. Doty grabbed Churchill's hand and told him to hold onto him and he would try and reach the drowning man. Both Mr. Letts and Mr. Schroth took hold of Churchill's hand so as not to leave him fall into the water which was 18 feet deep at that particular point. The bank was a wall straight up and down. As Mr. Doty shoved off he placed his left hand against the bank to hold him out so he could reach him. The first dash he made he put his foot around his neck. He was a foot or more under the water. He succeeded in reaching him and drew the man quite a bit nearer shore, but further under water. He made one more effort to get him and caught him under the chin and brought him so near shore that Mr. Doty got both his feet under his arms. He told his men to pull him up slowly and they soon had him up so they could reach the man and hustled him out on shore. Mr. Doty took his coat off at once and threw it down on the pavement. The man was laid on it with his head the lowest and rolled back and forth until all the water ran out of his mouth and he soon recovered so he could be taken to his boarding house. A man standing near by saw Mr. Doty throw his ear trumpet to the ground before entering the water, and came to Mr. Doty and told him that if he had not been deaf he would have never saved that man as all the people around there said that there was no chance and that he would also drown. The man came out for a week with Mr. Doty and left his picture with Mr. Doty who still has it together with an account of the affair as published in the Chicago Tribune.

There was a hot baseball game which was won by the Frankfort team. Volley ball was the game of the evening. The first game was played by Green Garden and Frankfort, Green Garden winning. The next game was played by Manhattan and Peotone, Manhattan being the victor. Then the winning teams final victor.

Bible school was held at 9:30 a. m., and English services at 10:30. In the afternoon various games were played. Everyone who stayed brought their own dinner. Supper was served by the Bible classes, Sunday school and the congregation.

Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Clark of Oak Park were instrumental in springing a surprise on the former's mother, Mrs. John Clark Tuesday afternoon in honor of her birthday by entertaining the members of the C. B. B. club. Mrs. Floyd Clark brought a very lovely birthday cake and refreshments with her.

The guests all enjoyed the party and wished the hostess many more similar occasions.

ORLAND M. E. NOTES.

Elmer L. Satterlund, pastor. Friday evening July 29th, the picture features Charles Ray in "The Fire Brigade".

Friday August 5th, Chas. Murray in "McFadden's Flats".

Services as usual on Sunday morning July 31st. Bible school at 9:30 standard time and the morning worship hour at 10:30. Every service should help us be more fit to meet life's emergencies and problems and give us a virile faith in the goodness of the Christian life.

No evening services during July and August.

Recently an evening entertainment was given by the young people's league of the Mokena Evangelical church. It was in the nature of a play entitled "All On Account of 'Polly'". Splendid "between the acts" talent contributed greatly to the enhancement of the evening's entertainment and the Mokena church is to be congratulated upon having such splendid talent. We welcome you again and assure you of greater patronage now that you have made a name for yourselves in Orland.

On Tuesday of last week the Official Board meeting was held in the church and nominations for next year's board were made. A feature of the evening's meeting was the presence of Rev. Paul Sanders of the Worth Community church who presented matters of interest and recommendations to the Orland Park church based on the increasing inter community-spirit which is developing among the churches of the South west towns. The board members greatly appreciate Mr. Sanders interest in their problems and welcome him again to our church, when he cares to come.

On this same evening a "surprise shower" was given in honor of Mrs. Evelyn Manning, formerly of Orland Pk. but now of Chicago. Mrs. Manning was Miss Evelyn Hansen before her marriage. A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cooper and an evening of social interest was indulged in. Delightful refreshments were served and Mrs. Manning and husband left with a large number of presents which "showered in" upon them that evening.

The pastor of the Orland Park M. E. church was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooper of Mokena and preached in that pulpit on Sunday evening July 17th. We appreciate very much the cordial reception given at the Cooper home, by the pastor Mr. Beatty and also the people of the Mokena M. E. church. Mrs. Satterlund accompanied her husband.

On Sunday morning July 17th Mrs. Sadie B. Glahn was received into the fellowship of the Orland Park M. E. church transferring her membership from the Irving Park M. E. church of Chicago.

What the Governor's Veto Has Done

Calling attention to the fact that the veto by the governor of the appropriation for automobile investigators has made it impossible for him to enforce the Automobile License law, Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson today urged sheriffs and police officials to be more active in seeing that all cars have licenses.

"I am informed by reports from various sections of the State", Secretary Emmerson's letter says, "that a large number of automobiles in practically every community are being operated without 1927 state licenses. Most of these, apparently, are cars purchased recently."

"As you may have noticed in the public press, the appropriation for the payment of Automobile Investigators who have been operating out of my office was vetoed by the Governor, thus making it impossible for me to continue the practice of co-operating with local officials in enforcing the automobile license laws. I fear this will result in the loss to the State of perhaps half a million dollars in automobile license fees, and as you know that means a reduction of that amount in money available for construction of highways."

The only way in which this tremendous loss can be minimized is by activity on the part of local authorities everywhere in enforcing the law.

During the past biennium thirty-five investigators working under my direction warned 61,000 delinquent motorists and arrested 10,000 others. This was in addition to the work done by local authorities co-operating with them.

It is evident, therefore, that much greater activity by police and sheriffs will be needed now that these investigators have been withdrawn through the action of Governor Small in vetoing the appropriation.

Your interest in this matter will be of great public benefit.

The Legend of The Wolf Road

—BY—

Don C. Hall

About thirty-five years ago, in the early nineties, my wife and I visited the old Indian cemetery or burying ground near STEVENS POINT in WISCONSIN. It was early evening and we were strolling along leisurely, each occupied with our own thoughts, for we were both quite familiar with the latter day history of those whose remains were buried there. We were soon brought back from visions of the past to the present day realities however, by the evidence of building activities taking place in the immediate vicinity and in fact encroaching upon the very ground where the dead warriors had been laid to rest many years before. There were mounds of dirt, piles of stone and other building material, and numerous excavations. Our progress being stopped by the derbis, we had paused for a moment before turning to retrace our steps, when there came to our ears, a moaning sound, a cry of anguish, as of some one in deepest pain or sorrow. Glancing in the direction from which the sound came, to our surprise we saw, by the fading light, sitting hunched by one of the mounds, the bent and withered form of an aged Indian, holding an object yellow with age, closely to his naked breast. I greeted him with the Indian salutation "BU-SHU NITCHEE", and as he raised his head, our eyes met in mutual recognition. I recognized in him the Indian friend of my childhood days. For a moment neither spoke, then as he slowly arose to his feet, I extended my hand to him, saying "Wa-netch-kah", "How," "Why are you here?" As the old Indian came toward us, my wife clasped my arm and nestled a little closer to me, yet seemingly not afraid. A few steps brought the aged WARRIOR to my side, and there standing erect before me, he stretched forth his arms and placed the object he had held, in my hands, saying as he surrendered his precious burden into my charge, "WHITE CHIEF, YOU MY FRIEND, THIS MY FATHER, YOU KEEP, GOOD BYE." He was gone before I could reply, vanishing into the gathering darkness. A glance downward revealed to me, a human skull. Indian instinct had brought this child of nature, to the grave of his FATHER just in time to save from ruthless destruction this sacred CAVERN OF THE MIND. I held in my hand all that was left of the mortal remains of WABAKANISH who came from the land of THEAKIKI by the "WOLF TRAIL", by the "CREEK OF THE BOWS", where he found the faithful maiden with whom he journeyed through TYANACKEE, "THE WONDERFUL LAND", due north, as the raven flies, to the realm of the "WHISPERING PINES". "Ye who love the haunts of Nature, Love the sunshine of the meadow, Love the shadow of the forest, "Ye who love the nations legends, Love the ballads of the people, That like voices from afar off, Call to us to pause and listen", must find an answering appeal in the simple legend of "THE TRAIL OF THE WOLF"—"THEAK-I-KI" through the vale of "TY-YAN-AC-KEE", "THE WONDERFUL LAND".

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancée, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has drifted ashore. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying.

"Because, at present, my duty is here, as you can see."

Then the man, whose intimate knowledge of the inanimate had seemingly taught him little of men, laughed rawly:

"Your duty? Yes, I suppose when you fur people get yourselves into a mess of this kind," he nodded toward the door, "you feel you have to see it through."

Joan Quarrier rose from her chair, stunned by the stupid brutality of the remark—fearful of the retribution it deserved. Eyes black with anger, Guthrie glared at his guest, who, sensible of his mistake, grinned sheepishly, then flushed to the roots of his stiff hair. The muscles in the face of the factor knotted, the veins in the brown neck above the flannel shirt swelled with blood in his efforts at self-control.

"I—went too far," Quarrier mumbled. "I didn't mean, of course—" But he was cut off short with:

"Your bed is in the trade-house! You know the way!"

The long arm of Guthrie pointed to the door.

For a space Quarrier stared into the cold eyes; then, stung by the outrage to his dignity, got to his feet in angry protest.

"What do you mean? You dare insult me—order me out of your house like an inferior?" But there was that in the face of the man whose arm still indicated the door which wrung the bluster from the geologist as water is wrung from a rag.

"You'll hear from this—this conduct of yours. I'll report this to your superiors," protested Quarrier, as he stormed out of the room.

Guthrie turned to the girl, who was visibly swept by shame—stirred by an emotion which left her weak, clouded eyes fixed on the man who said in a voice still thick with anger:

"I'm sorry, Miss Quarrier—so sorry. He—went—too far."

"You were right—he was impossible," she agreed in a voice raw with disgust, with a slow nod of the dark head. "He has always blundered—always failed to understand."

"I want to tell you about her."

She turned on him almost fiercely. "Do you think I, also, do not understand?" she demanded.

For a space he searched her tense, white face; then replied, cryptically, "You have served with the wounded; it is enough."

He went to the door and whispered to old Anne. Then he began:

"She came here in June with some Ojibwa, from far beyond the Elkwan headwaters, for this is a Cree country. They were not her own people, I am convinced, but one of the men claimed to be her father. She was not sure, for she had grown up with them—didn't even know her age, but she can't be more than eighteen. Old Anne found her sick in a tip—half fed—neglected. We took her in, and for a time the canned milk and the broth worked a miracle. She was happy—too; that helped."

"When the trade was over and the Indians started for their summer camps, they demanded her—and she could hardly walk a hundred yards without resting. Of course, they didn't really want her; their purpose was to hold me up. They asked for everything in the store. They always do when such a thing happens—an Indian girl stays behind, at the factor's quarters."

"You see they thought this was the old situation—so did the Crees—in spite of what Anne told them. They couldn't understand. Well, I finally got rid of her people—kicked them out. For weeks she was so happy."

Guthrie tiptoed to the sickroom door, looked in, and returned.

"In her last conversation with the Indian who called himself her father, I heard her repeatedly say 'Nin da, nin da.' She was so earnest about it, I asked Etienne what it meant, and he told me it was Ojibwa for 'I stay here.' Pretty, isn't it? Nin da, I dwell here. She has chosen her home. So we called her Ninda. She was one of us."

"Miss Quarrier," went on the man whose face had softened—grown boyish, "it fairly tore my heart—the happiness, the gratitude of that sick child. Those big eyes of hers followed me like a dog's. I had rescued her, no doubt, from unspeakable misery."

"It was only natural, I suppose. After a few weeks she began to fail, and in August, when they called me to Albany, I couldn't throw off the memory of the despair in her eyes when I left. You see she feared she would not live until I returned—wanted me there when it came. Her eyes haunted me—every mile of the coast."

"This last time when I went, she bade me good-by—was sure that it was the end. But we needed the geese—we had to go. . . . I've seen men die—my friends; but those wistful eyes! . . . It's tragic. . . . and she so young."

Guthrie stopped his pacing to run his fingers nervously through his dark hair.

"Oh, the dumb misery, here in the north! Think if she'd stayed with her people, to die in a tip—neglected! I'm thankful if I've eased the loneliness—the pain—for one."

The sound of coughing, followed by Old Anne's frightened face in the doorway, summoned them to the other room. The effects of the opiate had worn off. The woman who had "served with the wounded" wiped the crimsoned lips that moved in vain attempt at utterance, as the large eyes, bright with fever, clung to the face of the man who sat beside the cot.

"You go to bed, Anne," said Guthrie to the wrinkled Cree. "I will be here the rest of the night." With muttered protest the old woman shuffled from the room.

Presently the dry lips of the sick girl again moved. "She wants to say something," said the nurse, and left them.

Guthrie bent over the pillow.

"You go—no more?" he faintly heard.

He smiled into the questioning eyes, as he shook his head. "No more—Ninda."

The heavy lids slowly drooped.

Through the slow hours of the night they sat beside the waif, who, out of the wilderness had come to Elkwan, and was now—returning. And in the intervals between her ministrations to the life which was slipping away, the guest of Guthrie learned much of the man with whom she shared the night watch.

In the candor of his explanation of the presence of the Indian girl at Elkwan, he had unconsciously revealed to the curious woman who studied him, intimate glimpses of heart.

The emblem of the Distinguished Service order which he wore in the photograph in his bedroom vouched for his caliber as a soldier. But why, she mused, did the brother of the rich Charles Guthrie linger in the wilderness of the west coast when a girl of such loveliness as her three photographs suggested waited for his return? For the nature of their relations was established beyond doubt by the written sentiment on the photographs. Yet, his health returned, he seemed to be deliberately staying on in the north. What was behind it all, wondered Joan Quarrier; not pity for this poor child, who, in the manner of her kind, had given him worship for the only kindness life had vouchsafed her. That, clearly, would have anchored Guthrie at Elkwan while Ninda lived, but in face of the fact that the girl was desperately ill—could not live into the autumn, he had prepared to winter on the west coast. Why?

So, together, they kept their watch, where, through the halting hours, the spirit of the waif of the forests hovered, awaiting release. Once, after a paroxysm of coughing, the veil of delirium lifted and there was a moment of consciousness. He leaned to her and the fear which looked from the groping eyes faded as she recognized the scarred cheek. The wraith of a smile touched the drawn mouth.

As the stars paled above the purple tundra of Akimiski, again she recognized the face of Guthrie. Her lips moved. His straining ears caught a faint "Bo-jo," the Ojibwa farewell. . . . Then a crimsoned froth welled from the tortured lungs.

When she returned with Old Anne crooning her grief, she touched him on the shoulder.

"You must go now. We will care for her."

For a space he stood beside the cot, then said:

"Good-by, Ninda. As you wished it, you will stay—here, with your friends." He turned cryptically to the nurse. "She was a soldier; she did not flinch from wounds," and went out, followed by the puzzled eyes of the other.

Then, outside, in the cool dusk of the clearing rose a wail, mournful, unearthly, followed by another and another.

Joan Quarrier's face appeared in the doorway of the living room.

"It's too ghastly," she said with a shiver. "How do they know?"

"They always know—always wail for the dead." And he went out to quiet the dogs.

At the gate of the stockade stood the alreale, joining the huskies in their threnody under the fading stars. At Guthrie's command, the dog stopped and trotting up, with a muffled whine thrust his moist nose into his master's hand.

"Ninda's gone, Shot."

CHAPTER III

Daylight found man and dog on the high river shore. At times the man spoke to the alreale, who, sensing his master's mood, repeatedly returned from short excursions to nuzzle Guthrie's hand. Again and again, before the light came, the whimpering huskies had taken up their wailing, to be checked by the man on guard, whose thoughts traversed the swift weeks of the summer.

Out of the silent places, this doomed child of the valiant heart had come, and now—into the silence had gone. What must have been her despair, he thought, to have left her people and sought sanctuary among strangers. But it had been friends she had found.

But what a miracle to have had that schooner driven on Akimiski with the girl who had shared the watch with him! What a solace and rock she had been—those fine, straight-gazing dark eyes, and capable hands. It was because she had understood—had resented his thinking it necessary to explain the situation at Elkwan that he had been able to talk so freely of Ninda. She had proved her mettle—she, too, was a soldier. He pictured Ethel, with her horror of the ugly, thrown into the situation which Joan Quarrier had calmly met with delicacy and skill.

That afternoon Etienne and Guthrie erected a spruce cross over the fresh grave in the little post cemetery and on the white wood of the arm, Guthrie burned with a hot iron the inscription: "In Memory of Ninda—A Soldier," which for years was to be the cause of much shaking of puzzled heads among the whites and the Crees who saw it.

At dawn the following morning, Guthrie's York boat with a Peterboro canoe in tow, slowly picked its way through the river mist of the Elkwan delta. In the stern, steering with a sweep hewn from a spruce sapling, stood the wiry Etienne, who knew the channels of the river mouths and the depths of the shoal coast from the Raft to Albany. To give the craft steerage way on the first of the ebb,

Little Visible Charm in Captured Mermaid

That the belief in mermaids should have survived all these years is extraordinary; but there is another curious side to the matter—that each successive mermaid seen through the centuries seems to have been uglier than its predecessor.

Of this there can be no doubt if one contrasts the description of the "mermaid" of the ancient Greeks with those of more recent times.

In an account of a "mermaid" captured off the coast of Natal, a writer describes it as having screamed like a woman when caught, and goes on to state that it had seven ribs on each side, lungs, kidneys and a heart about the size of an ox heart. According to the writer, the "mermaid" was 11 feet long, had a huge tail instead of

The transformation in the United States from a low order of industrial organization to a higher order did not begin until the first half of the Nineteenth century and its full effects were not felt until the second decade after the Civil war.

the sailors of the shipwrecked schooner manned four long oars. In the bow, the geologist, still smarting from his humiliation, talked in low tones to his sailing master. Beside the steersman stood Guthrie, holding a compass, for the shores were invisible. Near him, with forefeet on the rail the alreale peered into the white wall of mist, his black nostrils dilating as he caught, at intervals, on the moist air, scents vague, illusive, enticing.

"You are losing valuable time from your goose hunt by taking us to Albany in your boat," suggested Joan Quarrier to Guthrie, who had found a seat beside her.

"After what you've done, I could not send you off in that ship's boat. You might have been days making Albany—had serious trouble getting ashore to make camp if the wind changed. It's a tricky coast. You're not much like your dignified brother," he answered, his face lighting in amusement as he glanced toward the sulking Quarrier. "He's hardly worrying about our goose supply for the winter."

The clean-cut mouth of the man beside her curled in the smile she had come to associate with the factor of Elkwan. Then her eyes, shifting to the dim ribbon of spruce edging the marshes, saw the face of the girl of the photograph at the post, and she wondered what was behind it all.

He studied the profile of Joan Quarrier, the musing eyes with the strongly marked brows, the half-parted lips, the frame of chestnut hair shot with gold. Fine, it was, he thought with the beauty of expression; but above its comeliness of line and skin—the stamp of strength, the essence of character. The absent look faded from her eyes.

"I can understand on a day like this," she said, "what you mean by this gray coast holding you. It's so untouched—so primeval. It seems almost as if we were the first to see it."

"It's like this for a thousand miles—the west coast," he replied, "with a few fur posts at the mouths of the rivers."

"A thousand miles of silence—except the call of the geese."

"You won't be here for the Black Brant and the Grand geese. They are the last to reach the west coast—they and the swans."

"Swans?"

He nodded. "You haven't heard the voice of the raw solitudes if you've missed the trumpeting of the swans, high against the October stars."

"Man, you're growing poetic."

"The swans and the gray geese," he went on, "typifying it all—the silence, the loneliness, the beauty."

For a space she sat, chin in hand, heavy brows contracted. Then she looked up with: "Like so many, the din and excitement of the war—the disillusion of its aftermath, has left you with abnormal nerves. This loneliness which attracts you now will make a hermit of you—a brooding eccentric. Go back to Montreal before it's too late."

"Not until I've had it out with Laughing McDonald," he laughed.

"But whatever do you do in winter here? You'll admit it's forlorn enough then. Is it hard to keep warm in this terrible cold?"

"Cold? Why, it's colder on the north shore of Superior, and there's not as much snow. Of course when the wind blows it's cold on the sea ice. It's cold anywhere then."

"And so you're actually not lonely," she persisted, "I've heard of men going mad."

"Oh, of course, there are times—" His wind-burned face darkened as he avoided her look. "But there are compensations, you know. Shot!" The alreale left the rail and pushing between Guthrie's knees, lifted his whiskered muzzle with a throaty rumble, his eyes searching his master's face.

"Here is one. I couldn't be lonely with Shot, could I, old man?"

His tail beating the air, the nose of the alreale wrinkled in a display of formidable face smiling down at him.

"He worships you, doesn't he?" said the girl.

"We went through the last months together—comrades. You see he found two of us—gassed—and brought help."

The brown hands of Guthrie rubbed the alreale's small ears. Closing his eyes, Shot grunted in ecstasy.

"No, but we tire of pork, so when the goose is gone, go after caribou."

DAVID AND JONATHAN

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 18:1-4; 19:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT—There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Good Friends. JUNIOR TOPIC—David and Jonathan.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing the Right Kind of Friends.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Obligations of Friendship.

The friendship of David and Jonathan has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan was the crown prince, the heir to the throne. David was heir according to the divine choice and arrangement. Jonathan knew this and magnanimously waived his natural personal rights to the one he knew God had chosen.

1. Friendship Established Between David and Jonathan (I Sam. 18:1-4).

1. Love at Sight (vv. 2).

Following the interview of Saul and David after the victory over Goliath, Jonathan's soul was knit with that of David. He loved him as his own soul. While there was mutual love, this pleasing trait stands out more prominently in Jonathan than in David because it meant great loss to him—the loss of the throne; while it meant immense gain to David, the acquisition of the throne to which he had no natural right.

2. Covenant established (vv. 3, 4).

Following the love covenant between them, Jonathan stripped himself of his court robe and his equipment and gave them to David. This act was a virtual abdication of the throne to David.

II. Jonathan Defended David Against Saul's Frenzy (I Sam. 19:1-7).

David went into the battle with Goliath out of zeal for God and true religion—not for personal glory, but it turned out as always that because he made God first, God honored him.

Upon David's return from victory over the Philistines, according to Oriental custom he was met by a triumphal chorus of women from all the cities of Israel chanting praises to him for his victory over their enemy. They ascribed more praise and honor to David than to Saul. These women seemed to sing as answering chants. The one sang, "Saul has slain his thousands," the other answered, "and David his ten thousands." To hear sung the praises of a shepherd boy surpassing his own was too much for Saul. It aroused murderous envy which had been slumbering in his heart and moved him twice to attempt to kill David. This wickedness was in his heart as a bitter feeling, but this occasion fanned it into a flame, making it a burning passion of evil.

In Saul's third attempt to kill David, Jonathan defended him before his father and evoked from him the oath that David should not be slain. He thus exposed himself to the anger of his infuriated father for David's sake.

III. Jonathan Revealed to David Saul's Murderous Intent (I Sam. 20:30-40).

The beginning of the new moon was celebrated by sacrifices and feasting at which all the members of the family were expected to be present (v. 5). David's excuse for being absent was that he might go home to attend the yearly sacrifice of the entire family. The annual feast was more important than the monthly feast. Matters were now so serious that Jonathan and David renewed the covenant between themselves. In this renewal the terms were broadened beyond the life of Jonathan (vv. 14, 15). Saul's anger was now so fierce that for Jonathan to be found in David's company was most dangerous, so he cleverly planned a sign by which he could make known to David Saul's attitude and purpose. We prove our friendship by warning those who are exposed to danger. David's heart responded by pledging fidelity to Jonathan's seed forever. This pledge was faithfully carried out by David (II Sam. 9:7, 8). Concerning real friendship observe:

1. It should be made while both parties are young, when the hearts are capable of being knit together.

2. Real friends are few. We should be careful in the formation of friendships. For though we should love everybody we can have but few friends. Friendship should be formed for the purpose of helping each other. There can be no real friendship except where merit is on both sides.

3. Real friendship can only be with God-fearing people. Both David and Jonathan recognized their obligation to the Lord.

Satan on Watch

Prayer is the strategic point which Satan watches. If he can succeed in causing us to neglect prayer, he has won; for where communion between God and His people is broken, the true source of life and power is cut off.—Andrew Murray.

The Man at the Top

The man at the top is usually some one who has been in the habit of going to the bottom of things.—The Prospector.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grand-children, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

FRANKFORT CHEMICAL PUTS OUT FIELD FIRE

What might have been a serious fire on the Art Geuther farm last Saturday afternoon, was averted by the timely arrival of the Frankfort Fire Chemical.

Mr. Geuther had cut some Canada thistles and thought the wind was favorable, set them afire. But the wind proved to be stronger than at first noticed, and soon carried the burning embers to the near by hay and oat fields. Help was available at once but could not stem the on-rushing sparks. The chemical soon extinguished the fire. Only a few loads of grain was lost.

ments as well or better than they were cared for last year, which was the best year up to that time in the history of the church from this consideration. The pastor read his yearly report in which he thanked all people of the community for their co-operation and assistance, and in which he pleaded for even greater consecration and co-operation that the church life of the community might equal the material growth of this vicinity.

A virtual reorganization of the local church government was launched by the members and officials present at the earnest recommendation of Dr. Lumsden and the pastor.

Each member of the church and each present Official Member will vote by secret ballot for their choice of five stewards and three trustees for a church board. This makes for the greatest of democracy, each person having an unflinching vote.

There is a definite responsibility and work to be placed in the care of each of these officials. Heretofore the board has been so large that only a few had definite work to accomplish. There will be among the Stewards the following assignments: Church Treasurer, Missionary Treasurer, Communion Steward, District Steward, and Recording Steward. The pastor in commenting upon this new move said: "Though I have the authority according to Methodist law to recommend officials, I am willing that our church should be the highest example of democracy. It has been suggested that our board should be smaller so that each person may feel the importance of a particular duty and responsibility in helping bring the Kingdom of God. It would be hard for the pastor to select the best eight people for the jobs, and he knows that he will have the earnest co-operation of whomever you as members and supporters choose for these important positions. They will be your own choice."

Dr. Lumsden said: "This is the most democratic thing that I have seen a pastor do in any Methodist church and it should result in even deeper and more consecrated interest on the part of all the members and the friends of this church."

The Sunday School picnic will be held August 5th from 2:30 p. m., on for the children, and with dinner for the adults in the evening time. It will be held on the ground in the rear of the church. The Sunday School pupils will receive their dinner as a treat, along with other favors. The adults will be asked to pay for their dinner which will be served by the Ladies Aid, but the proceeds from which will be used for the Christmas expenses of the Sunday School.

WAYS TO BLOCK CROOKED PROMOTERS

By W. R. MOREHOUSE, Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association
(This is one of a series of articles exposing the wiles of sharpers who are after your money.)

MANY reliable corporations, firms and individuals are engaged in developing mining properties, drilling for possible new oil wells and promoting new inventions and enterprises. On the other hand many unreliable persons are ostensibly engaged in the same pursuits, but in reality are only promoting frauds. Therefore, every investor should first divide the sheep from the goats before he hazards his savings. Because there are many dishonest manipulators using mining, oil, invention and promotion terms to deceive does not mean that all promoters in these fields are crooked. The truth is, there are many trustworthy men engaged in promoting enterprises that are honest investments. The problem is to know the difference between promoters of the reliable type and the high-pressure variety. The former are engaged in legitimate business. The other group is engaged in fleecing the public.

The number of those who deliberately scheme to defraud is large and they are shrewd and deceitful. For this reason those who cannot afford to lose their savings should not trust entirely to their own judgment in making investments.

In order to divide the sheep from the goats—to distinguish between reliable and unreliable promoters, to tell the good investments from the worthless—the inexperienced investor should consult his banker or let the National Better Business Bureau, whose headquarters are in New York City, advise him. It costs nothing to get such advice from either source. It is safe to say that if those who have lost their savings through fraudulent schemes had followed this simple course they would still be in possession of their money.

Get the Facts
Invariably, get the facts and take no substitute. There is nothing better and nothing just as good as the facts when it comes to withdrawing your savings from the bank and investing them. The facts about an investment either strengthen its position or show it up to be risky—oftentimes too risky for the person who cannot afford to lose.

others you know nothing about. Some time you may be approached to make a trade by a plausible person claiming to have better investments to offer than those you have. Recently a woman owning a block of gilt-edge public utility stock was approached by two smooth sharpers and urged to exchange it for stock in a fruit company which, she was told, was not only very valuable then but would increase rapidly in value and soon make her independently wealthy. Fortunately she told her neighbor about her offer. It happened that the neighbor had recently been defrauded in a similar way. She advised the second woman to report her offer to the local better business bureau. Having handled many similar situations the bureau instructed the woman to make an appointment for the traders to meet her in her home.

New schemes to defraud are being hatched daily. The unscrupulous promoter never sleeps but is continuously plotting new methods of attack on the savers' hard-won accumulations. The liberties he takes with the law and the schemes he designs for belittling the sound advice of responsible persons makes it even more essential for investors to get the facts.

Remember that anything that is worth investing in is worth knowing about as to its safety, its income, and its marketability. Any investment which is enshrouded by a screen of glowing promises or is so complicated that neither you nor your banker can fathom it and get the hard facts isn't an investment you can afford to put your money into.

Make it an unbreakable rule to get all the facts, whether the investment be large or small, and you will save yourself the heartaches and bitter disappointment of losing your savings.

Millions of dollars which have unfortunately been lost through poor investment might have been saved if the investors had taken time to investigate before investing. There is always need for capital in safe, honest business and so great is the legitimate demand for investors' funds that not one cent need be wasted by them on fraudulent schemes.

Investigation revealed that the certificate of stock of the fruit company was fictitious. No such company had ever been organized. The evidence also disclosed that some certificates had already been issued and exchanged and there were a large number more ready for future use whenever a trade could be arranged.

Literally thousands of inexperienced investors are being swindled out of their good investments in such trades. It behooves all persons who have good investments not to exchange them without first getting all the facts from their banker or other person fully qualified to advise and protect them.

Don't Trade Good for Bad
Don't exchange your investments for

(A future article will tell of more schemes by which people are defrauded of their savings.)
